LETTER FROM THE DEAN
Karim Seghir
The year 2019 marks the AUC centennial and the 10th anniversary of the restructuring of the AUC School of Business. Thus, making it an ideal time for reflection and envisioning a more ambitious roadmap for the future. With this in mind the school has undergone an inclusive and holistic process to develop its Vision 2030.

For close to seven decades the AUC School of Business has upheld its position as the premium business education institute in Egypt and among the best in the MENA region. A position reaffirmed through the Triple Crown seal of excellence as well as notable ratings from prominent international ranking bodies. Through the years, the school withstood a variety of environmental changes that have shaped its philosophy to meet the needs and challenges of an ever-changing business context while maintaining its commitment to achieving excellence and creating tangible impact.

The school’s strategic direction continues to center on its core strength, its distinct location, and its global reach. This direction is clearly communicated in its vision to be the leading knowledge hub with Arab region relevance and global influence, and its mission to develop entrepreneurial and responsible global leaders and professionals.

The purpose of Vision 2030 is to direct the school’s programs, research and activities over the next 14 years as well as consolidate the efforts of its different programs and centers to achieve maximum impact. To create Vision 2030, global trends in business education and archetypes of top business schools were examined, in order to define what success will look like by 2030 and how the school will get there.

The process of formulating Vision 2030 was both enriching and enlightening. Numerous stakeholders were included in the different phases of the development which was research based, inclusive and ambitious. The process included an independent qualitative and quantitative market research in Egypt among student candidates, parents, as well as corporations followed by in-depth interviews with faculty members, staff, school Strategic Advisory Board members, and the McKinsey Education practice.

With a deep sense of commitment and profound dedication from its constituents the school is proud to share its path to future distinction which will not only shape the School of Business offerings but will develop new generations of change agents able and committed to make a difference in their communities, societies and the world they live in.

The School of Business aims to be the leading knowledge hub with Arab region relevance and global influence.

Vision

The School of Business develops entrepreneurial and responsible global leaders and professionals.

Mission
Vision 2030 aims to focus on providing leading edge practice-oriented academic and executive programs; producing and disseminating top quality research; raising the school’s regional and international profile and attracting the best students from Egypt and the region.
“We are committed to continue investing in research excellence by encouraging top quality, multidisciplinary research and creating channels for strong and mutually beneficial research collaborations with local and international stakeholders. Research informs teaching and makes the learning experience more exciting and relevant to our students. Research contributes to advancing knowledge and generating evidence-based innovative solutions to some burning problems our region is facing, such as unemployment, poverty, economic downturn and firms and industries competitiveness. Research keeps us alive, competitive and pushes our thinking forward. Investing in research excellence will continue to be one of the main directions taken to achieve our vision to be the leading knowledge hub with Arab region relevance and global influence.”

“The AUC School of Business has embarked on a transformational path for the past few years with promising signs of early success. I am confident that implementing Vision 2030 would enable it to further accelerate this transformation. It would also increase its prominence and relevance in the business education space in our region. The path is complex and requires a number of broad improvements which may initially feel uncomfortable. However, we are confident that with persistence and a strong focus on execution, it is the right thing to do in the long run.”
“In a time of great change what more do we need than to aspire to a generation of principled leaders that will pave the way for a brighter and better future; this has been at the heart of the mission driving the school of business at AUC. Born out the management department almost a decade ago, the school has quickly positioned itself as a serious global contender by ranking consistently in the last 5 years amongst the top 70 schools globally in executive education. It has also achieved the prestigious and coveted Triple Crown accreditations (EQUIS, AMBA and AACSB).

Since the birth of the school and throughout this inspiring journey it has been an honor and a pleasure working with the consecutive Deans and their highly competent and committed teams, both staff and faculty members, to observe the leaps and strides that have been and continue to be made. It is with great excitement and pride that I witness the next major milestone for the school with the launching of Vision 2030, which lays down the transformation roadmap to greater local impact, uncontested regional leadership and significant global relevance. I am confident that as AUC School of Business continues on its path of continuous renewal and improvement it will achieve great success and will make all us stakeholders very proud.”

“...I congratulate the leadership team of the AUC School of Business for the ambitious roadmap it has set for the school for the next 14 years. The school is already recognized as a leader in business education throughout the Middle East and Africa. I am confident that the institution will achieve its strategic plan. This achievement will allow it to solidify its position as the leading knowledge hub with Arab region relevance and global influence, and fulfill its mission to develop entrepreneurial and responsible global leaders and professionals.”

The Department of Economics has been spearheading efforts when it comes to academic offerings in the area of economic development. For starters, the department has revamped the economic development courses to include case studies and a research project, including access to financing and environmental impact.

In addition, the Economics of Egypt course (which is being taught by Egypt’s Minister of International Cooperation, Sahar Nasr ‘85, ‘90) will include investment-side policies related to responsible business conduct, namely anti-corruption.

Other offered courses and seminars closely related to local and regional economic development include:

- Economic History of the Modern Middle East course
- Selected Topics: Copyright X course (taught by Nagla Rizk, professor of economics, in partnership with Berkman Center, Harvard University)
- Economic Growth and Development course (graduate level)
- Seminar on Economic Development

ABR’S 5th Issue Entrepreneurship Hits the Newsstands

Fall 2015 • A diversified group of prominent academics and professionals contributed to ABR’s 5th issue, with 15 in-depth articles, together tackling a variety of significant Entrepreneurship-centered topics. AUC professors also contributed to ABR’s Entrepreneurship (Fall 2015) issue. Ashraf Sheta (Adjunct Professor) lists 5 premises that need to be set to teach entrepreneurship effectively while maximizing learning and entertainment in class. Ayman Ismail (Assistant Professor of Management, Jameel Endowed Chair of Entrepreneurship) sheds a light on the entrepreneurship ecosystem in Egypt and identifies seven major challenges that the whole ecosystem needs to address and proposes suggestions to move forward. Developed by KCC at the School of Business, ABR’s Theory in Practice section featured two case studies of companies adding great value to the Egyptian society. The first case tells the story of Robusta, an Egyptian success story of digital marketing. The second case tells the story of Iqraaly, a homegrown application designed as the reader’s alternative to radio on commutes.
June 1, 2016 • The AUC School of Business is hosted its Seventh Annual Strategic Advisory Board Meeting on June 1, 2016.
