AUC New Cairo was designed and built to reflect the University's mission to make significant contributions to Egypt and the international community, and to build a culture of leadership and service among its graduates. Since its founding in 1919, the University envisioned a suburban campus as its future home and in 2008, the University realized its dream and opened its new state-of-the-art campus in New Cairo. The campus represents a $400 million investment in the future of Egypt and the region, and ensures that AUC has the facilities and resources it needs to build on its tradition of academic excellence.

Winding paths and expansive courtyards on a technologically advanced and spacious 260 acres provide students and faculty members with unmatched resources in research, academic programs and recreational facilities. AUC New Cairo also houses a world-class indoor and outdoor sports complex, featuring one of the most advanced facilities in the region, and a Campus Center, which offers students an ideal environment for study and recreation.

Fully accredited in Egypt and the United States, AUC links Egypt and the region to the world through scholarly research, study-abroad programs and partnerships with academic and research institutions. Through its six schools, AUC offers more than 37 undergraduate programs and 40 graduate programs, including two PhD programs in applied sciences and engineering, to nearly 7,000 undergraduate and graduate students, in addition to an extensive continuing education program. AUC's faculty is comprised of 500 professional and dedicated scholars who hold advanced degrees from leading universities around the world. In addition, the AUC Library is the largest English-language library in the region, housing an impressive research collection in an array of disciplines.

AUC's historic Tahrir Square campus, which has long served as a major contributor to the cultural and intellectual life of Egypt, will continue this tradition in concert with AUC New Cairo — hosting important public speakers, serving as a venue for the discussion of pressing issues and creating a safe space for young scholars to explore the complex political, social and cultural dimensions of their world.
